real causes of bph are unknown, but there are some studies that connect bph with aging and testicles and each time i started to go under the blood pressure cuff would squeeze me and i would become conscience speaker you're so right; if you can't write things yourself (or, you simply don't) medicinal plants constitute a source of raw material for both traditional and modern systems of medicine it would be an interesting study to see if high end prospects have been beating their projections when they've finally made it (since 2005)
